IMPORTANT

Googling the company name plus "scam" or "rip-off" will give you some information on the company if it's not legitimate. Visit the company's website and if they don't have one or it doesn't have contact information, consider that a warning sign. Check out the company with the Better Business Bureau.

Online Job Scam Warning Signs

- ❖ You're offered a job without an application, interview, or discussion with the employer.
- ❖ The company asks you to wire money or asks for your credit card information.
- ❖ The company asks for personal information like your social security number or driver's license number.
- ❖ You are promised high pay for not much work.
- ❖ The company asks you to pay for a credit report as part of the application process.
- ❖ You are told you have to pay for training.
- ❖ You're asked to cash a check and forward some of the money to a third party.
- ❖ Here are a few key steps to help identify the authenticity of the job you are interested in:
 - ❖ Be skeptical of personal e-mail addresses. Any legitimate recruiter, HR person, or hiring manager will contact you from a corporate e-mail and never Gmail, Hotmail, AOL, Yahoo, or other free personal e-mail addresses.
 - ❖ Never accept money before working. Never agree to have money deposited into any of your accounts during the job search process.
 - ❖ Video interviews – Ensure the company representative is live in the interview. Legitimate recruiters, HR and hiring managers will always show their live self during a video interview.
 - ❖ Work from Home – Be cautious of any work from home job opportunity. Especially if you have been contacted by a person with a personal e-mail address, offers to conduct interviews without displaying their live image, and wants to send you money before you work.
 - ❖ Verify the job – Legitimate employers will post the position on their career site. Verify that job is on the career site and apply directly through the company's official site. If you don't find the job OR a similar job, chances are it is a scam.
 - ❖ If you have been victimized by a scam job offer, please use the resources below for additional help and to report the incident:
 - ❖ Your state's Attorney General's Office
 - ❖ Your local police department
 - ❖ Internet Crime Complaint center at iC3.gov
 - ❖ Department of Justice at www.stopfraud.gov
 - ❖ Better Business Bureau at bbb.org
